Dear Mr Starr:

Last September you promised to send me a clipping of the New York Sunday American of December 24, 1911, telling the story of John Wilkes Booth who married Louisa J Payne in Tennessee. Would it be possible for you to loan this to me at the present time?

You also stated that you had a story from Admiral George W Baird, who was one of those who identified the body of Booth. I would be glad to borrow this too. I have some clippings mentioning a Miss Rita Booth, who was claimed to be the real daughter of John Wilkes Booth born before the assassination. Do you know anything about this? Any material that you care to loan me will be appreciated. I assure you I will promptly return it and reimburse you for any expense you may incur.

Very truly yours
