Dear Sir—

In looking over files of the Confederate Veteran with a view to having them bound, I found a long article in the January 1901 number regarding the Killing of Lincoln by Booth, which recalled your expressed purpose of writing up and correcting such statements as ascribe the killing of the former to treachery and the latter to vengence.

As I wrote you, the Independent is not taken here, and its general contents does not appeal sufficiently for me to subscribe, so if you have written on that phase of the subject I would like to see it, complimentary or otherwise.

Supposing that you have seen the article referred to, I neither quote nor comment.

Very truly yours,

W. A. Love
