Dear Mr Wilson:

After receiving your letter of December 27th stating that you planned to forward the manuscript of a story about the assassination of Lincoln and John Wilkes Booth, I did not hear further from you.

Due to the recurrence of a great many newspaper stories repeating the myth of Booth's escape, we finally decided to print the result of our investigation of the past four years. I am sending you the first three numbers of this series of seven articles which will appear in The Dearborn Independent. As the others come out, I shall have them forwarded.

I shall, of course, greatly appreciate any comments you desire to make on them.

Very truly yours
