My dear Mr. Black:

The coin card which you mention in your letter of September 29 has just been reprinted by the publishers and they are quite emphatic in this new edition in stating that no money was issued by the Philadelphia mint in 1922. They account for this strange coincident by stating that it was a defective die made by the Denver mint which was very easily erased with a little wear. This may be the answer to the question.

I think your best bet on securing the pennies that have escaped you is to secure a Hobbies Magazine and there you will find several collectors who list these pennies for sale.

Do not worry at all about the photostatic copies which you said you would send. That may be done at the convenience of your photostat department.

Our sales department had accepted the $1.00 for the book, "Lincoln's Parentage and Childhood" and forwarded it before I became aware of it or I would have been very happy to have sent you a copy.

Very truly yours

Louis A Warren
