A comparison of the signatures on the following page clearly shows that David E. George could not possibly have been John Wilkes Booth -

The first is the J. Wilkes Booth written by D.E. George for Mrs. Harper at the time of his "Confession" in April 1900. This is followed by J. Wilkes Booth's authentic signature. Then we have "David E. George" to one of the Wills and D.E. George to the check he gave in part holy payment for the cottage.

~~Dr Stewart Focas~~

Major Rathbone's and Miss Harris' statements at the Conspiracy trial show that the major made every effort to apprehend the assassin and was severely wounded by Booth in the attempt

This would disprove the alledged statement of Lincoln at St Helen that the Parties would not interfere.

Stephenville, Texas, January 17, 1921 found that J. W. Gentry had been dead a couple of years. That John Morris, a friend of Gentry had been dead fifteen or twenty years and that John Winter died before Morris. Mike Hickey who came to Stephenville in 1875 knows of no Dave or D. E. George or John St. Helen. Mack Wilson, 80 years old, a shoemaker, has been in Stephenville for 50 years and remembers Gentry, Morris and Wood and says Gentry used to live in his house. He said all three are dead. He cannot remember anyone who looked like the tin-type of John St. Helen and never heard of that name.

J. W. Moss, son-in-law of G. W. Gentry says his father-in-law has been dead several years and that John Morris and John Wood have been dead a great many years. He never has heard of John St. Helen or D. E. George and never saw anyone who looked like the tin type that he could remember.

Mrs. Jim Cage says she ws married in Stephenville in1876 and never knew a John St. Helen or D. E. George. She says the tin type looks like a man by the name of Ame Smith she knew in Bustue County, Iredale, Texas about 1865 or 70; that the face and eyes look the same. She says this man, if she remembers, was an ex-convict and did not know what crime he had committed. She says he married a girl by the name of Samanthy Walker and that he was killed by a negro about 1870.
